

Name _____

- Two related sentences can be joined with a comma and and, but, or or.
- A sentence that contains two sentences joined by and, but, or or is called a compound sentence.

Read each pair of sentences. Rewrite them as a single sentence, using and, but, or or along with a comma.

1. Pakenham went searching for trees. He wrote a book about them.

2. General Sherman is the name of a person. It is also the name of a giant sequoia.

3. Would you like to visit a coniferous forest biome? Would you like to see a deciduous forest?

4. The fallen leaves enrich the soil. They allow all kinds of plant life to grow.

5. Oak, beech, ash, and maple trees are typical of a deciduous forest. Many types of insects and animals live in that habitat.

